Unabridged

shalt say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying, Let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness; and, behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear. Thus saith the LORD, In this thou shalt know that I am the LORD: behold, I will smite with the rod that is in mine hand upon the waters which are in the river, and they shall be turned to blood. (Ex. 7:15-17)

The rod of God indeed was in Aaron's hand (Ex. 7:17, 19, 20), and the water was putrefied, an amazing use for a mere stick of wood. In the days that followed, Moses "stretched forth his rod," and successive plagues came upon the land. After the waters no longer were blood, after seven days, there came frogs, then lice, then thunder and hail and great balls of lightning running along the ground, and then locusts (Ex. 8:1—10:15). Watch the destruction of judgment which came from a dead stick of wood that had become the rod of God.

Pharaoh's grip on the Hebrews was shaken loose, and he let the people go. But then he changed his mind and ordered his armies to pursue them. When the armies came upon them, the Hebrews were caught in a narrow place with mountains on one side of them and the sea on the other. And God said to Moses, "Lift thou up thy rod" (Ex. 14:16). What good is it to lift up a rod when one is caught in a cul-de-sac between mountains and a great body of water with the mightiest army in the world at his heels? Much good, if the rod is the rod of God. The waters divided, and the people passed through. Up to this point, the rod had been used for judgment and destruction, but now it was as much a rod of healing for the Jews as it had been a rod of judgment for the Egyptians. That which is in the hand of God can be used in either way.

Later, the rod of judgment also became a rod of supply. In Rephidim the people desperately needed water.

And the LORD said unto Moses, Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and thy rod, wherewith thou smotest the river, take in thine hand, and go. Behold, I will stand before thee

As Christians, we must see that just because an artist—even a great artist—portrays a worldview in writing or on canvas, it does not mean that we should automatically accept that worldview. Good art heightens the impact of that worldview, but it does not make it true.

Francis schaeffer art and the bible pdf.

The landlord of Christ must include an interest in the arts," writes Francis Schaeffer. "A Christian should use these arts to the hammock of God, not only as dealings, you mind, but as beauty things for the praise of God." Many Christian, cautious of creating gravel images, made clear artistic creativity. But Bábá offers a strong statement of the arts. The human impulse to create reflects our being created the image of a creative God. Art and Bábá has been a fundamental work for Christian generation in the arts. In the classic essays of this book, Francis Schaeffer first examines the bulk record of the use of vain art forms, and enters a Christian perspective on art. With clarity and vigor, Schaeffer explains why "Christian is the one whose imagination should fly in addition to the stars." Recommended for those interested in creativity, arts in adherence and art as relates to the bulk history." Carolyn Ego. Congregational Libraries Today, January/February 2009.
